Student Volunteers

for the 9th ACM Conference on Recommender Systems

WANTED

Who is eligible to be a student volunteer?

Any full time computer science or business informatics student may become a student volunteer. However, we especially encourage students to apply who fulfill the following prerequisites:

- Good English communication skills
- Enthusiasm, flexibility, and reliability
- Full time availability in the time of September 16-20, 2015

What do I have to do being a student volunteer?

You will be supporting the conference management on site wherever help is needed. For instance, you might attend certain sessions to assist the speakers with equipment or you might be at the door of the lecture rooms to verify that the people entering have a conference badge, etc.

There will be two briefings you must attend. The first briefing will be at the beginning of September, and the second will be at the conference site shortly before the conference starts.

What do I get in return?

- Free access to the conference including all sessions and exhibitions
- Meet and interact with the scientific community and experience active research
- Free meals at lunch
- Coffee and snacks in the coffee breaks
- Post-conference cash incentive (50 € per day spent working)
- Volunteer T-Shirt
- ... and our sincere gratitude for your efforts

How to apply?

Send your convincing application (one document including motivation letter, personal data, study number/s) in English to

sv-recsys2015@ec.tuwien.ac.at until February 22, 2015